

MORNING APPEAL.

FRIDAY FEBRUARY 7

FORMER BLOCKADES.—During the construction of the Central Pacific Railroad the danger of snow became apparent, and before the track had reached Ogden great difficulty had been experienced in keeping it open, even for construction. When in 1869 this railroad became the main artery of commerce with the East, the danger was even more keenly appreciated. Delays for a day or two were frequent, but in March 1874 the first serious blockade took place. Snow had been plentiful during the winter, but on February 28th a series of heavy snow storms set in which continued almost without intermission for two weeks. By March 4th the road was at the mercy of the elements. Heavy drifts at Collax, Blue Canyon, Emigrant Gap, Summit and Truckee, completely stopped travel. The snowplows and an army of shovelers fought the snow, but made no sensible impression until the storm ceased. On March 15th, after the road had been closed for eleven days, the blockade was raised. In 1876 another blockade occurred which lasted several days. In 1880 there were big storms in April which blocked the road. At that time the trouble was mainly on account of sheds being crushed by snow. Trains were blocked in Truckee five days. In March 1882 there was also a few days' blockade, since which time there has been no trouble from snow until the present year.—Truckee Republican.

THE SUCKERS' LEAGUE.—A new order was organized in Hawthorne last week. It is inelegantly called the "Suckers' League." J. A. Yerington was the unanimous choice of the league for President; James Yerington was chosen Secretary-Treasurer without a dissenting voice; Jim Yerington was made Sergeant-at-Arms by acclamation, and Jimmy Yerington was elected Board of Directors amidst the wildest enthusiasm. "The object of this Order," said Mr. Yerington to our reporter, "is never to take the best of anything; always give your neighbor the choice out of the turkey and milk from the top of the can; when a co-owner in a mining claim fails to do his share, you must have the work done and send him a receipt; when a friend equally skillful offers to play you a game of billiards even, you must say, 'Oh, no, I'll discount you.' If in a little game of draw poker you get four aces, you magnanimously discard three of 'em and 'bob' to the other. Oh, it's a great thing and 'in the Great Sucker—in fact I comprise the entire League, as is apparent from the above list of officers, but there are several applications for membership on file." And Jim gave a bogus nicker to a Piute who last week stole his gumboots, in consequence of which theft Jim got his feet wet and the acute rheumatism.—Walker Lake Bulletin.

KILL THE ARTIST.—The artist who got up the Grismer-Davies posters ought to be taken out and hung. These posters represent Joe Grismer alongside his wife, Phoebe Davies. Joe is about nine times as handsome as he really is in real life, and his wife is not one-ninth as pretty as she really is. Joe looks in the picture ten years younger than he is, and Phoebe twenty year older. Although Mr. Grismer is ranked as a handsome man all over the United States, he isn't a marker to his lovely wife, and hence the posters are misleading. If Joe has any gallantry about him at all he will, when these posters are exhausted, order a new batch elsewhere, before the public get up a riot.

YOUR WATCH A COMPASS.—A correspondent of the National Stockman and Farmer says: If you have lost the point of compass, take out your watch and point the short hand at the sun; the figure 12 will always be South, or as near as your watch is right, and you have the four points on your watch. I learned this hunting bees and other game sixty years ago, before people were so highly educated as now.
